

Unicum

H.P. Lovecraft Edition The Great Old Ones & Stories

A game for 3-7 persons over 10 years
by inzenhopeter, Markus Hagenauer & Henning Poehl with illustrations by Såde Kupias.
Translated by Phil Eklund, Sierra Madre Games

1. Game Contents

- 16 cards with Great Old Ones on one side and Titles of H.P. Lovecraft stories on the other
- 1 block with tip labels
- additionally one pencil per person is required

2. Game Idea

In UNIKUM - H. P. Lovecraft Edition is about the uniqueness of the cosmic horror in Lovecraft's universe. Each Great Old One and each story by H. P. Lovecraft has something that represents horror in its own special ghastly manner. You must identify these qualities and argue that its card deserves to be entered into the Circle of Unique Cosmic Horror.

In addition to this common task, you also accumulate individual points by correctly estimating the cards and the other players.

3. Game Setup

Agree on whether you want to play with Great Old Ones or Stories. Then shuffle the deck and place 9 to 14 cards (according to the number of players, see Table A) face-up in one half of the table. Cards in this half of the table are the Candidates.

The remaining cards are not used in this game and are returned to the box.
Each player gets a block with tip labels and a pencil.

Player	Cards	P-Round
3	9	3
4	12	3
5	10	2
6	12	2
7	14	2

Table A (P-Rounds is explained in „Course of Play“)

4. Course of Play

A) Tip Round – Evaluating the Cards

Each player writes secretly three of the candidates on his tip label by entering the name of each candidate in the field labeled “position”. In the first row, write down the candidate that you think will be the very first one included in the Circle of Unique Cosmic Horror. In the second row write in a candidate you think will be the next to last (penultimate) to be included, and finally write in one that you think will be included dead last.
Place your label hidden in front of you.

B) Proposal Rounds - Admission into the Circle

There are now a certain number of Proposal Rounds, depending on the number of players (see P-Rounds in Table A).

The players agree on who starts. (If no agreement is reached, the oldest starts).
In clockwise fashion, the players propose Candidates to be included in the Circle of Unique Cosmic Horror.

The player whose turn it is selects one of the Candidates and submits one argument why that Great Old One or that Lovecraft Story embodies horror in a unique fashion and belongs in the Circle of Unique Cosmic Horror. The argument must describe an aspect of horror of the Candidate that distinguishes it from all the other horrible Candidates. Subsequently, all players can discuss the argument put forward (but cannot submit further arguments of the uniqueness of the Candidate having nothing to do with the original argument). After a discussion (for or against the argument), it comes to a vote. The player whose turn it is calls for a vote, and all who agree with the argument raise their hand. (The player who introduced the argument must also raise his hand.)

- If more than half of the players agree with the argument, the Candidate becomes an UNICUM and enters the Circle of Unique Cosmic Horror by placing it in the other half of the table. Place the cards in a row, so one can determine in what order they were added to the Circle.
- If one half or less of the players agree, the card remains a Candidate on that half of the table. It can be later proposed as an UNICUM with a new argument.

After voting, it is the next player's turn to propose one of the remaining Candidates as an UNICUM. The game continues until each player has made a proposal twice (if 5 to 7 players), or three times (if 3 or 4 players).

C) Scoring

The Tip Labels of the players are revealed and scored. For scoring, count only candidates that are in the Circle of Unique Cosmic Horror.

Wertung / Scoring
Position position	Berechnung calculation	Punkte points
Erste first	10 minus Position
Vorletzte next to last	Position
Letzte last	2 x Position
	Summe / Sum:

For the candidate you listed (“tipped”) as being in first place, receive 10 points minus the position it actually attained in the Circle of Unique Cosmic Horror. So if it came first in the Circle, you get 10 - 1 = 9 points. If it came tenth (or more) in the Circle, or did not come into the Circle at all, you get zero points.

For your second candidate, the one you “tipped” as being next-to-last, receive a number of points equal to its actual position it came into the Circle. So if it was 7th in the Circle, you get 7 points.

For your third candidate, the one you “tipped” as being dead last, receive a number of points equal to twice its actual position it came into the Circle. So if it was 7th in the Circle, you get 14 points.

Each player adds the points he has received for all three candidates he listed. The player with the highest points wins.

5. Tips

If after a game you want to play again with the same Theme Set, in order to continue playing without problems the arguments used in the first game should not be repeated.